

GDPR and Privacy Notice: What you need to know

Privacy Notice

This is an easy read version of the University of York Privacy notice.

A Privacy Notice tells you what information is held by the University and how it is used.

It also explains your rights when your personal information is used.

The University of York is a Company registered with the Information Commissioners Office.

The ICO is an organisation in the UK which makes sure people's information is kept safe.

It also makes sure public services share information fairly.

In these privacy notices, when we say “We”, “us”, “our”, this means the University of York.

We might keep information about you.

This information helps us to try to make sure that the voices of people with a learning disability are heard in research.

We might keep information like:

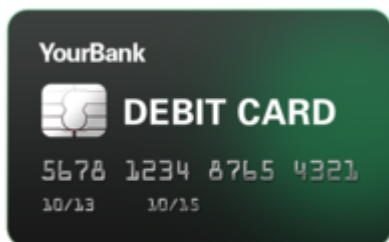

Name _____

Address _____

Phone Number _____

Your basic details and contact information.

This could be your name and your email address.

Your bank details.

We only want this if you do not work for us and we have paid you to take part in our research.

Sensitive information.

This could include your ethnicity and your disability.

We must follow the law when using this information about you.

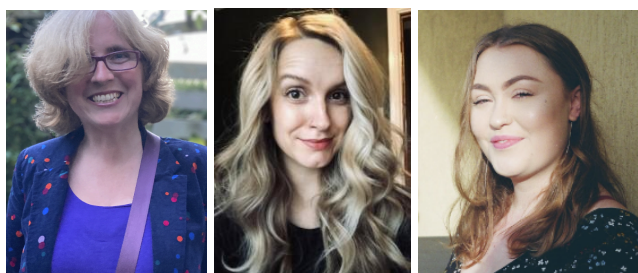

We will be clear with you when we collect your information about how we use this.

The information we take from you will only be used for the research you take part in.

You may also give us consent to use your information for other purposes, as discussed on the consent form.

We will always keep your information safe. Only people with permission to use your information will see this.

These people could be:

The researchers who are running the project.

Researchers from Mencap, who are leading the workshops.

Name	_____
Address	_____

Phone Number	_____

We will keep information indefinitely on ReShare, but it will be anonymous (meaning no one will know who said what).

We will tell you who can see this information.

The data that we keep about you is yours.

We will make sure it is kept confidential and used appropriately.

Confidential means that no one will be able to see your information unless you say yes.

You have many rights about how we use your data.

You have the right to request a copy of all the data we keep about you for up to four weeks after you take part.

You have the right to ask us to correct any data we have that you believe is wrong or incomplete.

You have the right to request that we erase any of your personal data that we no longer need to use.

You can tell us if you are not happy for us to use your data.

You can tell us to stop using your data if it's not needed, and we will keep it unless you want us to delete it.

You can ask for your information to be deleted if we have asked for your permission to process your information.

If we are processing your data to complete a task which helps the public interest, you have the right to say no to this.

Please email the Data Protection Officer if you have any questions or are unhappy with the way we use your information:

Email: dataprotection@york.ac.uk

In writing: Data Protection Officer, University of York, Heslington, York, YO10 5DD.
